WASHINGTON:

PRINTED BY GALES & SEATON.

1824.

To the House of Representatives of the United States:

The House of Representatives, on the 12th instant, having “resolved that the President of the United States be requested to inform this House, whether the rules and regulations compiled by Gen. Scott, for the government of the army, are now in force in the army, or any part thereof; and by what authority the same has been adopted and enforced,” I, herewith, transmit a report from the Department of War, which contains the information required.

JAMES MONROE.

Washington, February 23, 1824.

DEPARTMENT OF WAR,

February 16, 1824.

The Secretary of War, to whom was referred the resolution of the House of Representatives, requesting the President of the United States to inform that House "whether the rules and regulations compiled by General Scott, for the government of the army, are now in force in the army, or any part thereof; and by what authority the same has been adopted and enforced," has the honor to state that, after the repeal of the 14th section of the act of the 2d of March, 1821, which established the book of rules and regulations compiled by General Scott for the government of the army, the President caused the said books of rules and regulations to be continued in force by general order, a copy of which is, herewith, enclosed.

Respectfully submitted.

J. C. CALHOUN.

To the PRESIDENT of the United States.

No. 33.

ADJUTANT GENERAL'S OFFICE,

Washington, May 22, 1822.

ORDERS.

The fourteenth section of the act of the second of March, 1821, having been repealed by the act of the seventh of May, 1822, "the general regulations for the army," rest solely on the sanction of the President of the United States. The said regulations are, therefore, continued in force by his authority, in all cases where they do not conflict with positive legislation.

By order:

CHARLES J. NOURSE,
Acting Adjutant General.
